What Is Pre-Planning Funeral Insurance?

Pre-planning insurance is used to fund a funeral service agreement between you and a funeral home. You decide every element you want included in your funeral service, which includes everything from the casket to flowers to transportation for the family. The pre-planning agent totals the costs, and that amount is the basis for your insurance plan. You can either pay the amount in one installment or through monthly premiums. Upon your death, the funds are used to pay the funeral home for your funeral.

Why Do You Need Pre-Planning Funeral Insurance?

Over time, inflation will likely cause funeral costs to increase. However, a funeral contract combined with a Pre-Planning insurance plan can offset inflation for the items and services you include in your policy.

Pre-Planning also allows you time to understand the process and make clear choices that are right for you. You can decide if you want an in-ground burial or cremation, select a casket or urn, and even arrange for items incidental to the ceremony. Best of all, pre-planning makes the entire process easier for your family. Your wishes are spelled out clearly, so it eliminates all the guesswork. They will not need to wonder what kind of service you wanted or whether you desired a burial or cremation. Every detail will be outlined in advance, so they won't be overwhelmed with choices while grieving.
